Common questions

What do the numbers on the pack mean?

The first digit shows the step of the care, the second the product within that step: 3-1 is the first product of the third step (toner). In the cabin line, the order follows these numbers (p. 6).

Are cabin line products used in daily care?

The cabin line and the professional systems are for professional application. For daily care, there are home care series that cover the same steps (p. 52).

What are pH values for?

pH is the product's degree of acidity; the lower the number, the stronger the acidic effect. For products with acids, it helps plan the order and timing of application (p. 38).

Why does the routine end with sunscreen?

After products with acids or retinol, or those for the look of dark spots, the skin may be more sensitive to the sun. That is why both the cabin line protocols and the home care routine close with sunscreen (p. 72).

Where to start with sensitive skin?

With the Anti Sensitivity Series (p. 60). Try any new product on a small area first; if redness or burning persists, stop using it.

What if the pack and the catalog differ?

The information on the pack prevails. This catalog uses October 2026 product data; formulas and packaging may be updated.

When to start home care products?

On your skin care professional's advice, in the days after the session. Some protocols, such as C4, have a separate care plan for the first days (p. 32).

Where can I get Tanura?

Through beauty salons, regional representatives and distributors. Current list: tanura.com.tr/en/iletisim.
